On 5/23/12, an unknown number of people from the group "Occupy Colorado Springs" (NRID) are planning to demonstrate outside the Peterson Air Force Base gate. The group may also have a banner along the motorcade route. The group is demonstrating in solidarity with Occupy Wall Street and the global democracy movement. Colorado Springs Police Department advised the group has demonstrated outside Peterson Air Force Base gate previously with no incidents.

6. DEMONSTRATIONS:

United States Secret Service policy specifies that unless demonstration groups or individuals participating in a demonstration pose a security threat to USSS protectees, such demonstrators are to be treated as members of the general public. The Chicago Police Department has not and will not establish public viewing areas. Demonstrators will be allowed to demonstrate and protest on any public areas to include sidewalks.

Demonstration permits are required in Chicago, IL. Demonstration and/or protest activity surrounding the summit will likely be significant given the anger surrounding NATO's role in the war in Afghanistan and given the organization of the Occupy movement. Intelligence garnered suggests that protestors are very technically savvy and are using technology as a means to circumvent traditional law enforcement intelligence gathering and to meet and organize protest efforts.

The USSS demonstration and heckler policies will be fully discussed at all briefings.

Demonstration activity during the 2012 NATO summit will be reported, monitored and disseminated by the PICC to all concerned USSS entities by the most expeditious means available.

A. Planned Demonstration Activity:

To date, the following demonstrations are planned to coincide with NATO 2012.

The following are the most significant planned demonstrations:

05/17	Occupy's Day of Environmental Protest	Unknown members

"OccupyPDXNews" from PortlandN OR advises blackbloc is rallying to organize themselves. They refuse to speak with her on camera.

At the time, the demo is large, and unorganized. There are a lot of people just sitting in the shade. There are still speakers on the stage. Police are beginning to get into place.

I will advise when they start actually organizing and moving.

Another group of approx. 20 are also traveling on public transportation (bus) towards the NNU demo. Another approx 40-50 demonstrators are waiting for previously arranged buses to arrive.

More information to follow as it becomes available.

6. DEMONSTRATIONS:

United States Secret Service policy specifies that unless demonstration groups or individuals participating in a demonstration pose a security threat to USSS protectees, such demonstrators are to be treated as members of the general public. The Chicago Police Department has not and will not establish public viewing areas. Demonstrators will be allowed to demonstrate and protest on any public areas to include sidewalks.

Demonstration permits are required in Chicago, IL. Demonstration and/or protest activity surrounding the summit will likely be significant given the anger surrounding NATO's role in the war in Afghanistan and given the organization of the Occupy movement. Intelligence garnered suggests that protestors are very technically savvy and are using technology as a means to circumvent traditional law enforcement intelligence gathering and to meet and organize protest efforts.

The USSS demonstration and heckler policies will be fully discussed at all briefings.

Demonstration activity during the 2012 NATO summit will be reported, monitored and disseminated by the PICC to all concerned USSS entities by the most expeditious means available.

A. Planned Demonstration Activity:

To date, the following demonstrations are planned to coincide with NATO 2012.

The following are the most significant planned demonstrations:

05/17	Occupy's Day of Environmental Protest	Unknown members

Sir,

From the Adbusters (www.adbusters.org) web site:

On May 1, 50,000 people from all over the world will flock to Chicago, set up tents, kitchens, peaceful barricades and #OCCUPYCHICAGO for a month. The world's military and political elites, heads of state, 7,500 officials from 80 nations, and more than 2,500 journalists will be there for a rare G8 and NATO simultaneous summit. And so will #OCCUPY. Join us!

That is where the number 50,000 was derived from.

Good evening. In reference to the questions posed below, a demo is supposed to be permitted and one can apply through the city for a demo permit. If a group does not have a permit, the non-compliance will only be enforced should there be a crime committed or civil disobedience.

To give a little background on Occupy here, they have been peaceful, unlike what was seen in Oakland or NY. In fact, they are attempting to distance themselves from anarchists and other groups who don't espouse their ideology of peaceful assembly. (b)(7)(E) their HQ at 500 W. Cermak, and to date, there has been nothing concerning that has come from there or other addresses associated with the movement. They aren't trying to avoid carrying an Occupy banner, instead they are carrying the anti-NATO banner as the Coalition Against NATO/G8 or CANG8.

(b)(6),(b)(7)(C)

When I mentioned 50,000 people in conjunction with Occupy last Thursday, I said that the founding organization, Adbusters, was telling the media they wanted to get 50,000 to Chicago. That is simply a wish at this time. I can't say it would be impossible to get that many here, but we have no indication of that at this time. Yes, there are indications folks have started to arrive in town, but I don't think it is anywhere 50,000 based upon what we are seeing with hotel occupancy and squatting.

If I can answer any more questions, please do not hesitate to reach out for me.

Just got off the phone with (b)(6),(b)(7)(C) and (b)(6),(b)(7)(C)

Two questions: first question- Permit vs. no permit. What steps will CPD take against non permitted demos or marches? What do you have to do to obtain a permit by the city of Chicago?

Second question- Will occupy march under their own banner? If not, why not?

I need the answers as soon as possible so that (b)(6),(b)(7)(C) can brief (b)(6),(b)(7)(C) before tomorrow morning.

Thanks.

The most recent incident occurred on January 24, 2012 when a small group of 'Occupy' protestors and gay rights activists glittered Republican Presidential Candidate and former U.S. Senator Rick Santorum (PA) in Tampa, FL. According to open source reporting, three individuals shouted "stop the hate, bigot!" as they threw glitter at the former U.S. Senator.

4. Demonstration activity:

Demonstration permits are not required in New York City unless voice amplification is used and/or a march is conducted. In the event a demonstration does take place, site dedicated PI teams will monitor the activity and report the details accordingly.

NYPD has reported no known demonstrations or protests that would impact the Vice President visit to New York City on April 26, 2012.

The U.S. Attorney's Office, Eastern District of New York, Southern District of New York and the New York Police Department, have been briefed on the USSS heckler and demonstration policies. It has been explained that in the absence of knowledge of specific facts or observable actions, which would indicate that a demonstration group or individuals participating in a demonstration pose a security threat to a protectee, such demonstrators are to be treated as members of the general public. The officials briefed on these policies are as follows:

1. Occupy Wall Street is a collection of various groups protesting the current state of the U.S. economy. Since September 17, 2011, protesters have remained in downtown Manhattan's Zuccotti Park as part of the "Occupy Wall Street" demonstrations. Their message is unclear, but they seek change in the government's practices towards the economy. There were several arrests for civil disobedience and several government officials and celebrities have visited the site. During the President's visit to New York City on November 30, 2011, approximately fifteen protestors from the Occupy Wall Street movement demonstrated without incident. This group did not protest at any sites during the Vice President's prior visit to New York City.

As far as groups that plan to demonstrate at the event, the application deadline to file with the city ends tomorrow. Once the lottery is held on July 2nd, we'll probably have more information regarding who obtained permits, but I'd expect a lot of demonstrators will just show up. There's been a lot of talk online from several groups (Non Responsive Non etc) expressing an interest in demonstrating, but nothing is "official." Occupy used to have a presence in Charlotte, but their camping area was vacant when we drove by two weeks ago. (Non Responsive Non Responsive

I've highlighted his concern below. I used what was available in the assessment but if you have anything further that would provide more detail at this time, please advise. We plan on updating the assessment as the event approaches and expect more info then.

Done.

Has BK reviewed this? I think he should.

Also, a general comment, if possible I think a little more detail is needed on protest activity, i.e., locations, names of groups, any marches planned?

3. INTELLIGENCE FACTORS: DEMONSTRATIONS

The Protective Intelligence and Assessment Division has received no specific intelligence indicating violent protests will occur; however, peaceful demonstrations with civil disobedience are expected to occur in the Charlotte area to coincide with the 2012 Democratic National Convention.

Comment [ZA4]: There is nothing to indicate they may plan to disrupt planned events?

Recent political events have drawn protests by ~~factions of~~ the Occupy Movement. Within the United States, demonstrations have been peaceful although some did include civil disobedience, vandalism, and violence directed at police officers. According to open source media, Occupy-related demonstrations are expected to occur in the Charlotte area to coincide with the 2012 Democratic National Convention. Non

Comment [ZA5]: Add motive for protest, like, "to protest capitalism etc."

Non Responsive

Comment [ZA6]: What, the war in Afghanistan? Gitmo, something else?

Open source media reports indicate Occupy Charlotte ~~is focused on plans protests during~~ the Democratic National Convention and has been using social media to organize and communicate since being removed from its encampment outside Charlotte's old City Hall in January 2012.⁴ ~~These protests are likely to attract individuals affiliated with Occupy protests from other cities.~~

Demonstration activity during the 2012 DNC is unlikely to present a significant threat to dignitary or public safety. ~~Though the potential exists for clashes between protestors, delegates, or the police resulting in~~ Controversial topics such as the economy, the federal deficit, unemployment, health care, and U.S. military engagement are likely to feature prominently during the event and may lead to unauthorized protests that involve low-level isolated incidents of violence.

The City of Charlotte will designate "free speech" areas with amplification equipment for individuals and groups who apply for and receive access. Mecklenburg County parks will be available for demonstration activity without a permit.

Comment [ZA7]: Is this what city officials call them? If not, then change to demonstration areas.

Comment [ZA8]: Have they announced where these will be? If so, this should identify them. If not, then reword this to say that city officials have "announced their plans" to designate...

> During the 2008 DNC in Denver, Colorado, at least 24 demonstrations were held throughout the city. Some protest groups included as many as 5,000 individuals. Associated criminal activity included highway obstruction. Two DNC parking placards were stolen from unblocked vehicles parked in a designated law enforcement parking garage. To date, no permits have been issued for demonstrations September 3-6, 2012.

3. INTELLIGENCE FACTORS: DEMONSTRATIONS

The Protective Intelligence and Assessment Division has received no specific intelligence indicating violent protests will occur; however, fervent peaceful demonstration activity is scheduled to coincide with this event.

The G8 Summit will focus in part on the global economy, a source of contention amongst individuals worldwide. Associated protests have occurred in Greece, England, and the United States in the past year. Although the majority of the protests related to the Occupy Movement have been peaceful; some did include civil disobedience, vandalism, and violence directed at police officers. Originally slated to take place in Chicago, the 38th G8 Summit was recently moved to Camp David in Thurmont, Maryland. The Naval Support Facility Thurmont is a heavily-secured compound which will allow for an essentially protest-free environment. Nearby campgrounds have been closed at the request of the U.S. Secret Service.³

Several factions of Occupy are organizing legal, peaceful, and non-confrontational demonstration events in neighboring Frederick, Maryland. Specific numbers and groups are unknown at this time.

- In June 2004, the U.S. hosted the 30th G8 Summit in Sea Island, Georgia. Demonstrations were peaceful; however, during one demonstration in particular, individuals locked arms and lay in the road in front of a checkpoint. They were subsequently arrested for obstruction of highway.⁴
- It has been common for the president of the United States and key members of the Administration to attend G8 summits hosted overseas. During those summits, violent demonstrations, including injury to police officers and significant property damage, have occurred.⁴

Subject: Final Intelligence Situation Report for the visit of President Barack Obama to Burlington, VT on March 30, 2012.

4. Demonstration activity:

A permit is required in the State of Vermont for large scale gatherings; however, demonstrators in Vermont frequently do not apply for such a permit. No group has applied for a permit in conjunction with the President's visit. Demonstrations will be allowed so long as they do not obstruct the flow of vehicular traffic.

There has been information on the internet indicating that the Occupy Vermont group intends to conduct a protest. The group is aware that President Obama is going to hold an event at the Sheridan Hotel and The University of Vermont. Local police indicate that the group is unorganized and any protest would likely be small in nature.

The US Attorney's Office, Vermont State Police, University of Vermont Police Department, South Burlington Police Department, Burlington Police Department, Vermont Air National Guard, and The 158th Security Force were briefed on the USSS heckler and demonstration policies. It was explained that in the absence of knowledge of specific facts or observable actions which would indicate that a demonstration group or individuals participating in a demonstration pose a security threat to a protectee, such demonstrators are to be treated as members of the general public. The names of the officials present were as follows:

- A. US Attorney Tristram Coffin

Greetings All,

Some of you have already seen this but for those who haven't, it looks like we have our first "blip on the radar" for demo activity at the Spring Meetings. This came off the calendar on the Washington Peace Center site, no additional information at this time. I'll continue to follow-up for more discussion at our next meeting but I thought since this is the first one we've seen it would be of interest to everybody. Let the Games begin:

Occupy DC will have a week of direct actions against the polluting and planet destroying forces of the 1% on April 15th through April 22nd. Earth Week will be occupied this year, because there is no time to waste. As it states in the Declaration of Occupy DC:

"Corporate interests threaten life on Earth by extracting and burning fossil fuels and resisting the necessary transition to renewable energy. Their drilling, mining, clear-cutting, overfishing, and factory farming destroys the land, jeopardizes our food and water, and poisons the soil with near impunity. They privilege polluters over people by subsidizing fossil fuels, blocking investments in clean energy and efficient transportation, and hiding environmental destruction from public oversight."

Using the classical elements Air, Earth, Water, and Fire as themes, we will spend four days targeting the purveyors and apologists of environmental destruction. We will follow that up by demonstrating against the International Monetary Fund and World Bank Conference (April 20th-22nd) for their role in the furthering of planet-destroying social and economic systems.

Here is the latest intel for the IMF. I'm sure the bank will use this as a reason to ask for more support from us. I feel this may require more manpower from Metro and that our footprint should be sufficient. Let me know your thoughts.

Occupy Wall Street protesters are planning a rally to protest police brutality tomorrow, 3/24, from 12:00PM - 3:00PM. The anticipated crowd size is unknown. Event locations will be from Liberty Street to locations such as City Hall, Court Houses, Federal Buildings, and ICE detention centers in New York, NY. Exact locations are uncertain, but given the large concentration of government buildings near Foley Square, the area is a likely target for protesters.

Perimeter Fencing – In light of the potential threat caused by OccupyDC or other Anti-Globalization protest groups, their unimpeded access into the meetings venue would have the potential to disrupt the meetings and could put meeting attendees at risk. IMF/WB requests that Secret Service provide bike fencing for the security perimeter. IMF/WB view the fencing as a security measure under the responsibility of the Host Government.

Subject: Potential Occupy Movement Spot update

During a previous iteration of the Occupy Movement Spot Report, we wrote that the Freedom Plaza crew stated "National Occupation of Washington, DC" would kick off in the spring. Well, spring has sprung and they listed March 30 as the start of NOW DC. Below is the latest update thus far and we'll watch out for more information this week. Full document is attached.

Since we listed the March 30 date previously, would we want to get an update in the books prior to March 30 or wait and update based on their actions?

In March 2012, Occupy Movement websites and open source media reported group members and affiliates intended to protest major events throughout the year. They specifically mentioned

G8/NATO Summits, Republican National Convention, and Democratic National Conventions. Occupy Movement leaders instructed members to use certain keywords to link their social networking communications.

In March 2012, demonstrators posted on their website that Occupy Department of Education (DOE) was planned as part of the National Occupation of Washington, DC (NOW DC) event scheduled from March 30, 2012 to April 30, 2012. Organizers described the event as a protest against poor public education testing procedures and the quality of national education. Other events listed included social forums and art/music festivals. They also stated the event would include marches and non-violent direct action.

Thanks,

Occupy 2.0: Protesters Go High-Tech

By JESSICA FIRGER

Occupy Wall Street's open-air encampments and spontaneous demonstrations through New York City have been largely organized through Facebook, Twitter and other social media. Now, protesters said, those tools are no longer enough.

As the anti-corporate protest marks six months since its birth inside a Lower Manhattan park, a look back at the photos tracking the movement's development in New York City.

A team of about 30 people has been working through the winter months, developing high-tech tools to help coordinate demonstrations that protesters will execute this spring and summer. From Internet maps tracking police barricades to a fundraising website, protesters said the technology will help sustain the movement as it moves away from a collection of encampments and spontaneous protests—an Occupy 2.0, they said.

"Most of the technology we're working on enhances how we work together. We're trying to change the way things are done," said Andrew Mallis, 34 years old, who works as a web strategist and developer. "We're trying to build under the assumption that the world is a better place and we need better tools to work together."

Some of these tools—mapping, high-definition live-stream video, mass email list-serves and secure mobile Wi-Fi networks—may be used Saturday when protesters have planned demonstrations to highlight the six-month mark since Sept. 17, when Occupy Wall Street first took over Zuccotti Park in Lower Manhattan. And they'll likely be used during a series of protests planned for across the country on May 1.

Calling themselves the movement's "technology operations working group," the team includes software developers, computer programmers web code writers and social media experts. Most live in New York, communicating by email and working in their spare time. Some members have taken on projects that require more than 20 hours of work each week.

The first of the group's more than 25 projects was carried out in September at Zuccotti Park: a "Freedom Tower" that made secure Wi-Fi available to all protesters and visitors. It was destroyed during when New York City police raided the encampment on Nov. 15.

A widely anticipated tool the team is still developing would allow demonstrators access to an online protest map of sorts that would help coordinate Occupy's roving, unlicensed street protests.

Using their smart phones, protesters can tip off others to NYPD presences during rallies, take photos of a skirmish or send a video of a flashmob, all of which is documented in real time. The information would be flagged geographically on the map.

Devin Balkind, a 25-year-old web developer who helped create the mapping technology, said a version of it would be kept private so protesters could talk to each other and stay on course during marches, without authorities monitoring their communication.

Drew Hornbain, a 25-year-old freelance graphic artist on the team, called their work the creation of an "alternative network" to help Occupy groups plan events. It's not that Twitter and Facebook, social media tools that built the movement, are ineffective, he said. But they have begun to present drawbacks.

The technology group coordinated an online email petition calling on the Manhattan District Attorney's Office to cease in its attempt to gain access to the Twitter account of a man who posted about a protest during which arrests were made. A person with knowledge of the matter said prosecutors were requesting only public information from the account, such as past tweets.

"The data is an incredibly powerful tool for governments and corporations to go after people," said Charles Lenchner, a 42-year-old digital strategy consultant who lives in Brooklyn.

Matthew Lepacek, 30 years old and a self-described Libertarian pseudo-journalist hacker, said the group is also close to completing a fund-raising site similar to Kickstarter, an important project since Occupy Wall Street is nearly out of money.

The new fund-raising site will largely function under an earmark system, in which donors may choose the specific project they wish to support and a small percentage of that money will go directly to the General Assembly, the main deliberative body of the group.

Most of the software is open-source, meaning the code is published, and the group has a few ideas in testing, including a remote control that would allow protesters around the country to participate and vote in meetings.

There is also a website being developed similar to Facebook that would be used to link protesters in different cities and share information.

"In order to be able to move ideas forward it can't really be encapsulated by pressing a 'like' button," Mr. Mallis said.

A version of this article appeared Mar. 17, 2012, on page A17 in some U.S. editions of The Wall Street Journal, with the headline: Occupy 2.0: Protesters Go High-Tech.
